

---

NEIL MCKAY, UNB Saint John

Dicotic Placement Games

Placement games can be played with pen and paper. Players place pieces and those pieces are not moved. Dicotic games are nice to play as these are games in which each player has a move unless the game is over (when neither player has a move). We review the dicotic placement games that have been studied (including Domineering variants) and game values that appear. Our view is that in practice we may find more interesting Normal-play values with smaller birthdays by studying dicotic games specifically.